

Equality Network 'intersex equality' project

Since 2015, the Scottish Government has funded the Equality Network to undertake work on 'intersex equality'. The Equality Network has received £45,000 per annum for this work (a total of £180,000 since 2015).

2015/16 annual report

Other projects

The organisation received funding from the Scottish Government Equality Unit to begin a project to support intersex equality. This project ran two residential forums bringing together intersex people and UK intersex organisations with Scottish equality organisations and policy makers, and provided a paid internship for a Scottish intersex person to develop their skills in delivering training, writing good practice guidance and organising consultation events. The project researched intersex equality issues, and delivered four intersex-led awareness training sessions for policy makers and service providers.

2016/17 annual report

Other projects

The organisation received funding from the Scottish Government Equality Unit to continue a project to support intersex equality, which began in 2015. The project ran a residential forum bringing together intersex people and UK intersex organisations with Scottish equality organisations and policy makers. The project worked with eight intersex people around Scotland to help develop their confidence and skills. The project continued to research intersex equality issues, supported two intersex people to participate in an international intersex conference, and created a short film featuring intersex people speaking about equality issues.

2017/18 annual report

Other projects

The organisation received funding from the Scottish Government Equality Unit to continue a project to support intersex equality, which began in 2015. The project continued to research intersex equality issues, engaging with a variety of intersex organisations and people.

2018/19 annual report

Other projects

The organisation received funding from the Scottish Government Equality Unit to continue a project which began in 2015 to support equality for people who are intersex or who have a variation of sex characteristics (VSC). The project continued to research intersex/VSC equality issues, engaging with a variety of intersex/VSC organisations and people. The project engaged with education organisations to discuss intersex/VSC issues, and organised, in partnership with Edinburgh Napier University, a conference on intersex/VSC issues, for students of midwifery and child nursing.